Deputy pleads guilty to sodomy charge

By Sam Bennett
Staff Writer for The Review

County Sheriff's Department Deputy Russ Williams pleaded guilty to one count of first-degree sodomy in Circuit Court Tuesday, according to District Attorney James O'Leary.

The charge is a Class A Felony, which carries a maximum of 20 years in prison or a $100,000 fine, O'Leary said.

A sentencing date of 9 a.m. on Dec. 19 was set by Circuit Judge Robert Morgan, he said. Williams remains free on his own recognizance.

As a result of the hearing, the former public affairs officer was served with a possible termination letter Tuesday from the Sheriff's Department, according to Capt. Pat Detloff.

Williams remains on paid administrative leave pending a meeting with Chief Deputy Riz Bradshaw within the 10 days following the letter. The office will then consider disciplinary action up to termination, which Detloff said is most likely considering that Williams is now a felon.

Williams was given leave on July 12, following child abuse allegations made by a fellow deputy July 7. On Aug. 16, he pled innocent to charges of first degree felony sodomy and sexual abuse.

As public affairs officer, Williams was well known in the community. He regularly visited local schools dressed as Officer McGruff or Officer Friendly. He also conducted crime prevention seminars in the community.

Williams is 46 years old and has been with the Sheriff's Department since Aug. 22, 1977.
